

Info Regarding the Chatsworth Scanners Used by Audition Manager

I received the following email from the Chatsworth Corp...

Hi Barry, The sun is setting on our ability to build more ACP100's unless an order of 500pcs (about $250,000) comes in due to rising costs and minimum order quantities from vendors. Our production office now focuses on our IOG products line for business these days.

The ACP200 scanners are no longer available at all.

I have not found other vendors that produce comparable, compatible scanners. The ACP100s and 200s were incredibly well built and extremely reliable with virtually a zero error rate. The cost for one was dramatically less than other scanners. They were perfect for Audition Manager.

Does this mean the demise of Audition Manager? Check back here in the next few days for more info.
